Choate Earns 2026 Chambers Recognition in Tax, Real Estate and Labor & Employment

Choate has again earned rankings across our tax, real estate, and labor and employment groups in the 2026 Chambers USA guide. These results reflect the depth and versatility of our capabilities in these areas.

Among individual honorees, Alison Reif is recognized in Labor & Employment (Massachusetts) and David Mollo-Christensen is recognized in Employee Benefits & Executive Compensation (Massachusetts)

In Real Estate (Massachusetts), both Paul Laudano and Adam Zaiger are recognized, while John Marshall Chambers and Olivier Léger received recognition in Tax (Massachusetts).

Chambers provided the following review of each practice area:

Labor & Employment (Massachusetts): “Choate Hall & Stewart is noted for its handling of employment disputes such as wage and hour class actions and discrimination claims. The firm stands out for its work on the defense of whistle-blower related litigation.”

Real Estate (Massachusetts): “Choate Hall & Stewart has a broad real estate practice that handles a range of transactional mandates, such as acquisitions, financings and joint ventures. The firm is adept at advising clients across a variety of sectors, including life sciences and biotechnology, offering strength in negotiating complex corporate office and laboratory leases.”

Tax (Massachusetts): “Choate Hall & Stewart is commended for its handling of both national and international tax matters. Offers valued advice in areas such as investment fund formation, complex M&A matters and tax strategy. Clients include public companies and private equity firms.”
