Christine Savage Speaking at NCURA's 68th Annual Meeting

Christine Savage will speak on the panel, "Federal Regulations and Policies – Current State," at NCURA's 68th Annual Meeting in New York City on Monday, August 3, 2026, from 4:00–5:00 p.m. EDT. The session will explore the impact of recent federal policies, regulatory changes, and agency interpretations affecting higher education institutions and research funding.

During the discussion, panelists will examine key developments influencing proposal submissions, sub-awards, award terminations, publication requirements, and foreign collaborations. The session will also address how evolving federal regulations and policy priorities are reshaping research administration, with a focus on practical strategies for navigating compliance challenges, anticipating future changes, and identifying opportunities in an increasingly complex regulatory environment.
